Family Day Care Australia remains committed to best outcomes for children

Family day care has been providing quality child care to Australian families for over 30 years. This unique home-based child care service remains committed to providing high quality care and education outcomes for children.

Acting Chief Executive Officer of national peak body Family Day Care Australia, Monique Webber today said that, "In the wake of the ABC Learning Centres crisis our concerns are for the families and children who might be feeling nervous and uncertain about the future. In the current economic climate many families need to work just to make ends meet and without quality child care choices that becomes almost impossible.

"We trust that children and families affected by this unfortunate situation can continue to access their child care service as we understand the importance of attachment and security for children."

Family day care will assist as many families as possible with child care should the need arise during these uncertain times.

Family Day Care Australia is committed to working with the Australian Government through the COAG early childhood agenda. Ms Webber said, "We hope that the situation with ABC Learning will be treated as an important lesson and an opportunity to improve care and education for all young children."
